Familial ring to it

MORRIS LAMONT The London Free Press

Western grad Danielle Lazzarin of Chatham reaches out to hug grandmother Patricia Barre of London after receiving Barre's 1969 UWO grad ring following convocation ceremonies yesterday. Lazzarin earned a BA in languages and will attend Althouse College this fall. In middle is Lazzarin's mother, Carole, a 1972 UWO grad who now teaches French at Chatham-Kent secondary school. Barre was middle-aged with four children and a full-time job when she went back to school and achieved a degree in psychology. She wore her grad ring proudly until presenting it yesterday to her grand-daughter.
